Most students dream quickly finish the university and forget as a terrible session sleep, coursework, exams. But there are those who wish to continue their studies to continue to engage in science, or teaching activities. To do this, go to graduate school. When training in graduate school no longer have to attend lectures and take a bunch of examinations, but it will be necessary to engage in scientific, research work, under the leadership of the supervisor. Also, the responsibilities of the graduate student include lectures at least 50 hours a year. For writing of the candidate work, it is given 3 years if a full-time learning form, if correspondent then 4 years. Upon graduation and protection, you are assigned a degree candidate of science. With this degree, you can count on a good job, also get exemption from the urgent service in the army (this fact has become decisive for many students). Studying in graduate school most often paid and costs quite expensive, so graduate students have to work and not everyone has time to write the candidate if you encountered the same problem, you can ask for help from specialists.
