

What is a magistracy?

cheap term paper service

In the modern system of education, the magistracy is the second stage of higher education, we can take on which only graduate specialists can.

An explanation is required: at the end of the magistracy, the bachelor or specialist receive the proud title of "Master" as the highest academic degree.

That is, the end of 5 courses at the university is not the limit; Moreover, there is no limit to perfection, and the young specialist can noticeably increase the level and quality of the knowledge gained earlier.

From the history of magistracy

The magistracy, as an educational degree appeared in 1803 by order of the Emperor of Russia Alexander I. All masters could be headed by the department, which was a great honor and highly paid work.

However, with the arrival of Soviet power, namely in 1917, all educational degrees were canceled, and the education system was declined for many years.

Officially, the academic degree "Master" was restored only in 1993, while not particularly interested in students.

However, such skeptical moods soon changed sharply to the opposite, and the relevance of the magistracy is obvious and in the modern education system.

The view that the Master is the West Flow, the so-called "fashionable chip" erroneous.

However, it is fair to note that Western countries are really highly appreciated by masters, they are familiar with their employment, and the wages of such qualified specialists are at least higher than that of bachelors.

Master's features

So, the magistracy is the highest level of higher education, which provides for high-quality preparations for the upcoming analytical, research and advisory activities.

Most often, certified masters devote their lives to research, development and promotion of their field of activity, that is, completely give themselves science.

For greater understanding it is necessary to carry out a parallel between the masters and bachelor.

In the first case, we are talking about the tremendous opportunity to occupy senior positions, independently conduct analytical scientific activities, to earn good.

And this is not all the advantages that graduate from all received graduates.

Advantages of magistracy

Among the main advantages of this form of training should be allocated:

1. The best pedagogical composition;
2. Individual approach to each learning;
3. Rich teaching experience;
4. The ability to pass candidate minima on philosophy and foreign language;
5. Obtaining a Master's Diploma recognized in all European countries;
6. Continuation of graduate school;
7. The ability to conduct scientific and teaching activities.

Situating all the facts described above, it becomes obvious that the end of the magistracy is a "ticket to a bright future", where financial prosperity and stability will reign.

In addition, a graduate can find work not only on the domestic wage market, but also successfully employed in Europe, where a few other salaries and working conditions. So the result is really worth it.

Rules of receipt and training in the magistracy

To get to graduate school, you need to go through the first step of higher education and get a bachelor's degree or a specialist.

After that, it is necessary to recall the entrance exams again, but training in this case lasts not 4 - 5 years, and 1.5 - 2 years, depending on the specialty. According to the issue, you can count on obtaining a diploma of the European Standard.

It is worth noting that the magistracy is not only a budgetary, but also a contractual form of study, but only those qualified specialists who, in depth and range of knowledge, will bypassed all their competitors.

So here it definitely requires quality training, and knowledge within the framework of the course has passed, alas, not enough.

When entering the magistracy, you can only count on the full-time form of training without separation from work. Do not worry: In this question, all the nuances can always be personally discussing with Dean.

After a graduate of the university is enrolled in the magistracy, the obligatory document is the individual plan of the upcoming work approved by the dean.

It is in it that the date of training, the theme of the Master's future dissertation, the scientific direction of the student and the amount of work, the form of certification is indicated.

The plan is on the hands of a studying, that it clearly understood what goals are set, and the deadlines for their implementation are determined.

Each future master is enshrined at the teacher, who is later called the supervisor.

It is this specialist of a wide profile that helps in writing a master's thesis, expanding the knowledge of his ward and is the so-called "binder" between the student and the dean.